Principle

Studio Libeskind

Seungki manages several large-scale projects for the studio with a focus on Korea. He is responsible for design development, project management, and daily communication and coordination with clients and local architects and consultants. His experience designing many large-scale high-rise luxury residential projects and mixed-use complexes around the world makes him a valuable leader of the design team. Seungki was integral in the realization of the residential complex, Reflections at Keppel Bay in Singapore, and most recently, the Hyundai Haeundae Udong I-Park in Busan, Korea, and Yongsan International Business District in Seoul, Korea. Seungki previously worked with New York firms including di Domenico + Partners and MG Design Int'l LTD as well as Kolatan / Mac Donald Studio. He worked on various scale projects including Ningbo Sun Plaza in Beijing, China, and the Atlantic Terminal complex in Brooklyn. In addition, Seungki has taught as a teaching assistant at Colombia University. In 2001, he received his MArch with Honor Award for Excellence in Design from Columbia University in New York and a Bachelor of Science in Architecture from Han-Yang University, Seoul in 1997. Seungki speaks Korean and English.
